

A woman is shown from the waist up, wearing a vibrant blue, heavily textured dress that appears to be made of a material like paper or fabric with a rough, fibrous surface. A large, jagged tear runs vertically down the center of the dress, revealing a dark, possibly black, interior. She is holding a long, thin, light-colored wooden staff or stick across her chest. The background is a clear, bright blue sky. The overall composition is minimalist and artistic.
